

Major Charles C. Hamilton
Headquarters Air Force Services Agency

Major Charles C. Hamilton is a Force Support Officer serving as the Executive Officer for the Commander, Air Force Services Agency, Port San Antonio, Texas. He leads the Agency Commander's executive and administrative support including the support staff, administrative section, and supply and distribution center directly supporting over 750 Agency employees. He manages all Agency suspense's, staff packages, and taskings to ensure responsiveness to Department of Defense (DoD), Air Staff, Major Command, installation, and field commanders. He is responsible for planning, coordinating, and leading support for distinguished visitors, to include briefings and agendas, protocol, and logistical requirements. He holds a Bachelors Degree, Parks, Recreation and Sport Management, Florida International University.

Major Hamilton began his military career by attending Air Force Basic Training in 1989. He has held several Air Staff, Forward Operating Agency, and installation-level positions in Medical Logistics, Services, Force Support, and Finance at CONUS, overseas and deployed locations. He is married to the former Lynda Castaneda and they have two children: Sydney (3 years), and Gavin (1 year). He enjoys weight training, biking and traveling.

